4th Annual Health and Safety Fair Draws Thousands

FONTANA - The 4th annual Health and Safety Fair hosted by Second District Supervisor Paul Biane attracted more than 5,000 people to Jack Bulik Park on May 20.

The fair featured numerous free health services including skin cancer screenings, blood pressure checks and body fat tests. In addition, 100 car safety seats donated by Young Homes were distributed to parents, and California Highway Patrol officers discarded scores of old and broken car seats.

A hundred children received free bicycle helmets, and radio station KTIE-590 created and gave away more than 50 SafeAssured IDs to parents. The IDs are mini-CDs that contain a child's photograph, fingerprints, and other identifying information that can be turned over to law enforcement when a child is missing.

"I'm glad so many people were able to come out and take advantage of the free health screenings, products and safety information available at the fair," Biane said. "The Health and Safety Fair grows every year thanks to the community's support and the help of our many sponsors and vendors."
